Target Special Populations

Using Data to Provide Services for Special Populations

Wednesday, February 20, 2008

Join us as we explore the ways to use data to provide targeted services that effectively assist Nontraditional students as well as other students from Special Population groups in conquering the barriers they face!

Do you work with students in K-12, adult education, or community colleges? Are you working with clients as they prepare for or select a career that allows for career-ladders, self-sufficiency wages, and self fulfillment? If so join us as we:

- Learn to explore the data used by your system and how to use it to plan and evaluate efforts aimed at increasing the success rates of students from special populations in Career and Technical Education Programs.
- Discover the value in Nontraditional education and the ways students can make logical choices that provide a self-sufficiency wage for them and their families.
- Receive free resources and analyze the changes in Carl D. Perkins IV legislation.
